WPXI Channel 11 reporter/anchor Vince Sims spoke to Moon Area High School (MAHS) students in the African American Culture Club on January 18.

Sims spoke to the club, which consists of approximately 20 students, about his life experiences both on and off camera. He showed students a clip of his Emmy-winning G-20 protest coverage, and discussed his career and adversities and challenges that he overcame throughout his journey.

"It was very gracious of Mr. Sims to volunteer his time to come talk to our students. His work is an example of what can be achieved through education and individual dedication. The students were enthralled by his inspiring message and enjoyed having a local celebrity in the classroom," said Kirsten Jones, club adviser and MAHS social studies teacher.
