MAHS Teacher Uses Skype to Communicate to Classroom

Moon Area High School (MAHS) Physics teacher Shawn Welsh has been using the video and voice software technology of Skype to keep in contact with his classroom while he is out on leave. Skype has enabled him to help two of his physics classes learn the material and ask him specific questions face-to-face on screen. Currently, Welsh is only using Skype for his two advanced classes; however he may Skype in to other classes occasionally to answer questions.

He said, "I feel that this is a great way to model science and technology to the students. It is what scientists do, find solutions to everyday problems."
